Where XING can win for ChauTech

XING facts for our target markets from the Target Market report (ChauTech Consulting GmbH, Sept 2026). XING works in the German-speaking region only.

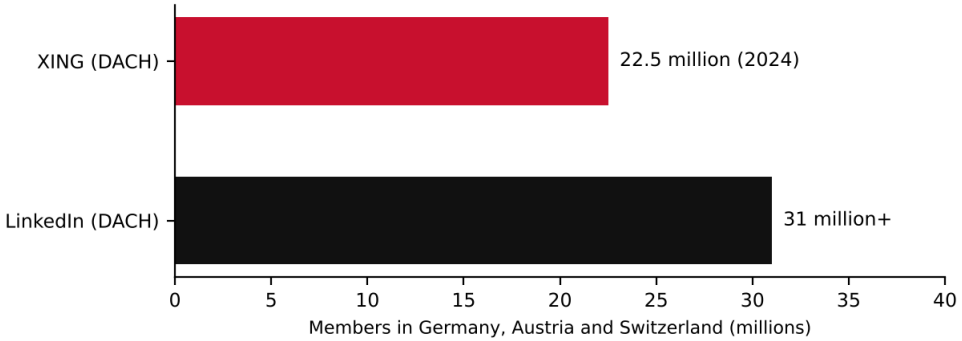

22.5 million
XING members in Germany, Austria and Switzerland, last public count (2024) [2].

13 million
XING users available in Germany (about), citing Statista. No date is shown [4].

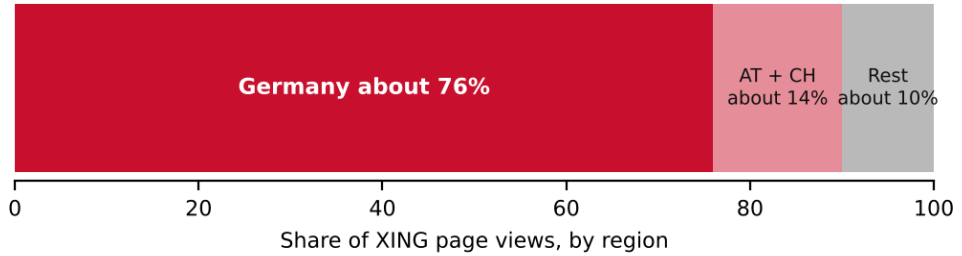

About 90%
of XING page views come from the German-speaking region (DACH) [3].

56%
of Swiss professionals are open to a job change, the highest in DACH (Jan 2025) [2].

XING compared with LinkedIn

Where XING page views come from

What this means for us

- XING is a DACH network. About 90% of page views come from DACH [3], so it can support only Germany, Switzerland and Austria.
- It is smaller than LinkedIn in DACH: 22.5 million vs 31 million+ members. Only 5% of people use XING regularly vs 12% for LinkedIn (Statista) [2]. We need both.
- Direct contact works well: regional B2B inquiries on XING get 22% higher response rates than on LinkedIn (TU Munich research) [2].
- Posts alone reach less: LinkedIn users are more than 3 times as likely to engage with business content [2]. So on XING we combine posts with direct messages.
- Best roles on XING: sales, finance, HR and operations [5]. We aim at HR directors and department heads on XING, and CTOs also on LinkedIn.
- The other 12 target countries are outside XING. For them we use LinkedIn and Facebook.

Sources: see References on page 3. Member counts differ by source (about 21 to 22.5 million); we use the 2024 figure [2].

Priority score vs XING strength

We combined our own market score with how open professionals are to new offers in each XING country.

Professionals open to a job change

Xing/Forsa survey, January 2025, 4,924 respondents [2].

Reading the chart

- Switzerland (56%): the most open market, and our second-highest score (8.6) [1]. A good place to test early.
- Austria (44%): mid-level openness and a score of 8.0 [1]. Add in phase 2.
- Germany (36%): the lowest openness, but the top score (9.2) [1] and by far the biggest XING pool (about 13 million users) [4]. This is the volume market.
- Why it matters (our view): openness to change matters most for our recruiting service, where more open professionals can make candidate sourcing easier.

Our XING ranking (where to compete first)

Rank	Country	Market score [1]	Open to change [2]	XING role for ChauTech
1	Germany	9.2	36%	Main market: biggest pool, start outreach here
2	Switzerland	8.6	56%	Test early: highest openness in DACH
3	Austria	8.0	44%	Add in phase 2 with the same German content
4	12 other countries	5.8 to 8.4	No XING data	XING is not used there: use LinkedIn and Facebook

The strategy: how we compete on XING

Our competitors are other IT consulting, software and staffing firms. We win with a complete page, direct contact and steady German content.

Phase	Markets	Actions	Goal
Phase 1 Weeks 1-6	Germany, Switzerland	Complete the XING company page. Get Premium so we can message people outside our contacts [4]. Send personal connection requests with a short note to HR directors and department heads. Post in German regularly (we suggest 2 to 3 updates a week).	First replies and calls from decision-makers
Phase 2 Months 2-3	Add Austria	Ask XING for a price quote, then test one Lead Ad: 3 steps, up to 3 custom questions, leads exported as CSV into our CRM [4]. Target by job title and career level [4].	Know our cost per lead
Phase 3 Months 4-6	DACH, with LinkedIn	Put more effort into the message and audience that worked best. Move every lead to our sequence: connection, email next day, call on day 3 to 4.	Steady lead flow at lowest cost

How we beat competitors

- Complete company page: logo, short description, value statement, full details and a named contact person [4].
- Regular updates [4] with proof: projects, results, client wins (with permission).
- Direct, regional contact beats posting alone [2].
- Right audience: HR, sales, finance and operations roles [5].
- Our values: Professional, Flexibility, Innovative, Trusted.

Content mix each week

- Tuesday: IT tip (AI, cloud, hiring)
- Wednesday: one service
- Thursday: team, values or a job post
- Every post ends with one call to action: Contact us or chautech.de.

Competitor check (every month)

- Pick 5 competitors on XING in Germany, Switzerland and Austria.
- Note how often they post and what gets most reactions.
- Copy what works, do it better, avoid what fails.
- Track ours: followers, post views, clicks, messages, leads from XING.

Targets and budget: follower targets will be set after 2 weeks, once we know our XING starting number. No public XING ad prices were found, so we request a quote before asking the CEO for budget. A basic account can message only existing contacts, so Premium is needed [4].
